

Attention to studies

Areas to work on

Feedback - changes

Tools needed

---

QUESTIONS FOR A CHILD:

- Tell me about your week - was there anything you really enjoyed?
- Was there something you were really hoping to do, but didn't have enough time to work on?
- Are you enjoying your reading?
- What's your favorite book?
- Do you have a book you're really not enjoying?
  - Why?
- How were your lesson plans this week?
- Are you having trouble finishing reading assignments on time?
- Are there other assignments you're having trouble finishing?
- Is anything challenging you?
- Do you have all the tools you need?
  - Need more paper in your basket?
  - Pens?
- I've noticed >> MENTION X ISSUE HERE <<.
  - What's going on?
  - Are you challenged by this in some way?
  - Can we get to the root of the problem?
  - How can I help?
  - Do you need a better tool?
  - Another tool?
  - Do we need to focus on building a habit to make this challenge less of a burden?

QUESTIONS TO ASK MYSELF:

- ** Are expectations realistic?
- ** Are reading assignments appropriate?
- ** Are there areas that seem to bottleneck during the day?
- ** Do the time allotted expectations need to be adjusted?
- ** Are there other distractions that need to be brainstormed?
- ** Are there subjects/areas that are consistently a struggle? consistently not finishing in the time allowed?
- ** Can I logistically correct some of the challenges?
- ** Is this an area of discipline?
- ** Am I providing enough input?
- ** Am I available during the times of day that my older students need me most?
- ** Distractions